

C. A. C. COMEDY "THAT'S THAT" WINS PLAUDITS

Show Proves Musical Mirth-quake From Start to Finish
At Grand.

AGAIN TONIGHT

Joe Lynch Given Rounds of Applause as Rustic.

A musical mirthquake and "That's That," can well be used to describe the Circleville Athletic Club's musical comedy which was presented to a small crowd at the Grand theatre Thursday evening amid laughter and jollity of the first degree.

The show, a John B. Rogers production, produced under the direction of Miss Grace Mackey, who also took an important part in the comedy, will be presented again this evening and those who didn't see it Thursday will probably be there tonight for nothing but favorable comment could be heard after the show had been staged.

The principals were excellent; songs were well rendered and acting showed the kind of training the youthful thespians have been given in the past several weeks.

AT PALM BEACH

The production opened in a hotel at Palm Beach, Florida, in the middle of the winter season. The entire first act was staged at this place with the second act in the evening of a masque ball.

Time and space will be given right here to tell of the person who really put the show over, Joe Lynch, in the role of Eddie Dewey, a real estate man from the sticks, who trailed his sweetheart, Leity Brown, (Grace Mackey) who had changed her name to Leity Brownell and was busy climbing into the social whirl of the resort.

As a comedian Lynch was a scream and to have heard that audience applaud and laugh was one of the biggest parts of the show. As a substitute for "Miss Information" when he was told to answer Yes, No, and Wouldn't Be Surprised, Lynch brought the house down. Then when he walked to the edge of the stage and while in a quandary pull a banana and a weiner from his hip pocket and devour them was just too bad.

Another pair of comedians who gave a great amount of laughter to the show were Paul Wallace and Esther Drum as Mickey Sullivan and Mamie Rimer, two rough and tough New York east siders.

This comedy pair with its dances and songs and all around clever acting won much praise.

Now to get to the more serious part of the show. Frank Price and Elizabeth Cady, both new-comers to local home talent productions, were well-nigh perfect for their parts. Price displayed a well-trained tenor voice and Miss Cady who sang with him proved a highly capable partner.

Tom Drum and Kate Marion in the minor roles also gave good accounts of themselves.

Miss Mackey, who took the part of Leticia Brownell, social climber, was very good in her dances and songs.

Miss Mildred Barthelmas as Mrs. Archibald Southwell, a society matron, and Gladness Troutman as John Nielson, a bottle king, both handled their parts in good style. Bob Wilson, a bell-hop, and a mighty good one, received much favorable comment.

Other characters who carried minor parts very well were Helen Crist as Jane Bronson, a guest; Jinsy Mader as Suzanne, of the information desk; Mary Neff as Miss Lottia Questions and Bess Warner as Mrs. Safety First.

Chorus included Jinsy Mader, Mary Neff, Helen Crist, Bess Warner, Mildred Ritt and Mary Angella Ryan were ladies in the opening chorus with Joe Rooney, Howard White, Bob Maloney, Dean White, Dwight Wilson and Leo White as gentlemen.

OHIOANS HELD AFTER ROBBERY

DETROIT, Nov. 14.—Three Ohio youths and a Shaton, Pa. man were held by local police today for investigation following their arrests on suspicion of armed robbery.

The four gave their names as Roy Tobey, 23, of Hubbard, O.; Henry Pohl, 23, and Ernest Currie, 23, both of Cleveland, and Carl Burdett, 23, of Sharon, Pa.

Hidden Fame!

John Bryan, shown here in the role of Lorenzo in Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice" at the Civic Theatre in Chicago, tried to remain simply "John Bryan," but recently it was disclosed that he is the grandson of William Jennings Bryan. Young Bryan, who is the son of Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, had six months' experience with a stock company in Wisconsin before joining the Civic Shakespeare Company.

DAUGHERTY TRIAL OPENS

Indictment On 57 Counts Faces
Former President of Now Defunct Bank.

WASHINGTON, C. H., O., Nov. 14.—The second day of the trial of M. S. Daugherty, indicted on 57 counts for alleged misappropriation of funds of the Ohio State Bank, began in common pleas court here today with six members of the Fayette-co grand jury still to be called as witnesses in the case.

The seating of a jury to hear the issues arising from pleas of abatement was completed yesterday afternoon. A score of prospective jurors were questioned and several were removed by peremptory challenge. Only one of the 19 persons examined stated that he had formed an opinion in the cases.

Daugherty's indictment followed the closing of the Ohio State bank, of which he formerly was president, and the Peoples and Farmers bank several months ago.

GANGSTERS GIVE COP DEATH NOTE

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Policeman Joseph Keating, the second state witness in the murder case against William "Three Fingers" Jack White, who was marked for death was under guard today following a death warning.

Keating reported to state attorneys' prosecutors that he had been sent the brief message: "Keating is next." The policeman was assigned to gather evidence against White, a reported racketeer with Capone affiliations. Working with him was Sergeant James McBride, who was shot and seriously wounded on a street car in an attempt on the part of the gang to prevent his appearance in court against White.

Veil of Mystery Hangs Over
Capital Where Result Is Awaited.

GROUP IS SPLIT

Many Expect Recommendation
To Return Beer, Wine.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Rumor and report filled the capital today as the Wickersham commission went into solitary confinement for ten days to try to arrive at some recommendation concerning prohibition.

The commission is badly split, not even the secretiveness of the members can conceal that fact. They were widely split when they first met more than a year ago, and months of deliberation and actual wrangling behind closed doors have not served to bring the divergent factions together.

The hope has been expressed that some sort of an opinion may be arrived at which will approach unanimity. But it is admittedly a forlorn hope. There may be two or three reports finally emerging next month, at least one which will favor the liberalizing of the Volstead act.

WAIT FOR REPORT

There is vast speculation in Washington as to just how far a majority of the commission will be ready to go in proposing modification of the commission will be ready to go in proposing modification toward light wines and beer. There is even more speculation concerning what the attitude of President Hoover will be, when and if a majority of the commission makes such a recommendation.

If, as many believe, a majority of the commission will decide finally to take the bull by the horns and propose modification it will pose a pretty question for Mr. Hoover and, for that matter, for Congress as well.

Congress is dry. Of that there can be no doubt. Presumably, Mr. Hoover is also dry, although how dry may be a matter of some dispute.

Be that as it may, it was recalled today, as the commission wrapped itself in solitude and thought, that President Hoover has never committed himself to accept nor endorse the recommendations of this commission, whatever they may ultimately prove to be. He appointed the commission to investigate, study, and report, there was no pledge of acceptance of the findings.

HAS THREE COURSES

Should a majority of the commission recommend the restoration of beer and the liberalizing of the Volstead act there will be three courses open to Mr. Hoover.

(1) He can forward the report to Congress with a favorable recommendation for legislative action.

(2) He can transmit the report with a covering letter expressing disagreement, or

(3) He can simply pass it along to Congress for its information and guidance without executive recommendation of any kind.

It is hardly conceivable under the circumstances that he could adopt the third course. The commission was his idea, its personnel was selected by him, he has frequently consulted its members during the long months of its deliberation, and what is probably more important, with prohibition looming larger and larger on the 1932 horizon, he realizes that the country is looking to him to take some sort of a stand.

500 MEN ARE SENT TO WORK

CLEVELAND, Nov. 14.—Nearly 500 men returned to work here today when the Peoples Motor Car corporation resumed activities on a one-half scale.

Announcement of the reopening of the plant was made by James A. Bohannon, president and general manager. The plant had been closed for several months.

HARRISON-TWP MAN NAMED-ON SCHOOL BOARD

W. H. Barch Selected To Fill
Unexpired Term of Late Dr.

Addison L. Stump.

TWO OTHERS UP

Well Known Man Will Begin
His Duties At Once.

W. H. Barch of Harrison-twp was named a member of the Pickaway-co school board to complete the unexpired term of the late Dr. A. L. Stump of Derby who died suddenly at his home several weeks ago. Barch was named by the board over two other applicants to the office, B. W. Young, Pickaway-twp and O. M. Beckett, Commercial Point.

Barch will begin his new duties immediately.

The selection of Dr. Stump's successor was named after three meetings were held for that purpose. A special meeting was called when names of applicants for the office were considered, a second of the regular meeting, was held last week with no definite action being taken and in this third meeting held Thursday afternoon a final selection was made.

The members of the county school board are Charles C. Heffner, Walnut-twp; Walter J. Marjor, Circleville-twp; Wayne Hoover, Jackson-twp, and C. E. Myers, of Washington-twp.

FLYERS PASS HERE ON WAY TO TEXAS

COOPER'S TAX GROUP SEEMS IN BAD SHAPE

Ohio's Future Taxation System
Is Now Matter For Much Conjecture.

SUBMITS REPORT

Many Recommendations Are Made By Chairmen.

BY C. C. HADDOX.
COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 14.—Ohio's future taxation system is in a chaotic condition, it appeared today.

Plans and suggestions, out of which a system in accord with the new taxation amendment to the Buckeye state's constitution may evolve, remains a jumbled mess.

From surface indications, the statewide taxation committee, selected by Governor Myers Y. Cooper a year ago, does not know when or what, it will recommend along lines of proposed taxation laws.

Meeting here Thursday afternoon, the committee was confronted with the fact that many of its subcommittees were not yet ready to make a report.

Before adjourning the committee decided to meet again not later than Dec. 17 at which time it is hoped that some of the subcommittees will be ready to submit partial, is not complete, reports.

The main committee then will submit its report to Governor Cooper who is expected to use the report as the basis for his recommendations for new tax laws which will be embodied in his message to the Ohio legislature. The session will convene here Jan. 5.

The chairman of the committee will select a subcommittee, of 10 members, to call upon Governor-elect George White, when he takes office Jan. 12, and offer him the services of the committee.

One of the recommendations which has been hurled into the committee's taxation arena is that motor vehicles be relieved of the general property tax. It was suggested by the automotive subcommittee. The subcommittee on real estate recommended a stamp tax on all public documents affecting real estate, such as deeds, leases and mortgages, of 10 cents for each $1,000 face value and that the re-appraisals of property be made every four years, instead of every six years, as now required by law, with the county auditor empowered to make re-adjustment. HARVESTER FIRM TO AID WORKERS

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—International Harvester Company, leading manufacturer of agricultural implements, today announced a plan to help tide its employees and former employees over the present business depression.

Mrs. Delker was killed instantly when the machine, driven by her husband, careened from the road, across the tracks of an interurban traction line, and overturned in a field after striking Alfred Gulick, 11, and Wilson Cook, 15.

Gulick suffered a broken back and may die, hospital attaches said. Cook and Delker were only slightly injured.

The investigation showed that Delker, who has only one arm, was intoxicated, authorities said. He lost control of the car as he attempted to pass another machine, they reported.

MRS. RUNKLE IS SUMMONED

Prominent Ashville Resident
Dies Friday of Pneumonia
After Short Illness.

Pneumonia after a four weeks' illness took the life of Mrs. Jennie Runkle, aged 68, a native of Pickaway-co. Death occurred at her home in N. Long-st., Ashville, Friday at 6:30 a. m.

She was born in Madison-twp, Aug. 10, 1862, and was a daughter of the late John and Jane Shannon Wilson. On Sept. 12, 1880 she was married to Albert Monroe Runkle, who survives. Her husband, one of northern Kentucky's best known and best loved residents, was a member of the St. Paul Lutheran church. Besides the husband and one son, Edwin L. of Ashville and a daughter, Mrs. L. of Lancaster and one daughter, Mrs. Ames L. Regal of Ashville. The following daughters survive: Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Mader, Ashville; Mrs. Sarah B. Mader, Ashville; Mrs. Patsie Hall of Madison-twp; Victor, William, and Mrs. Emma Salter, Ashville; and Mrs. Anna Salter, Ashville, also survive.

Funeral services will be Sunday at 2:30 p. m. at the home of Rev. W. H. Wier of St. Paul Lutheran church. Burial will be in Rose Hill cemetery by the W. H. Wier Co., this city.

Warden Thomas Tells Rotarians "Psychology Of Operating A Prison"

Speaking before the Rotary Club at its weekly meeting Thursday, Warden P. E. Thomas, of the Ohio State Penitentiary told of "The Psychology of Operating a Prison." "At the present time we have a population of 4,316 in the Ohio Penitentiary," he stated, "and during October received 251 new prisoners. Thirty-one were paroled. Every prisoner received at this institution is different. Some are in for minor crimes, while some are really criminals and it is our duty to place them to the best advantage and keep the good from the bad when possible. Placing good men with the bad soon spoils the good men and one of our big tasks is getting these men properly placed so that those who have prospects of becoming better men, after serving their time have a chance.

"There are two kinds of prisoners, he went on to say, "those who should get out and those who should never be out in society. With some of them their trade is to be a crook, burglar or the like and these men should never be let out of prison. We have many men who are two-thirds and more times and these men are the psychopathic criminals. We can never stop crime with severe penalties and the minimum sentences for many crimes are too severe, he continued.

"When we receive prisoners at the Penitentiary it is our duty to appeal to them from the human selfish standpoint, to impress on their mind that while in prison they should do the best they can to be up for parole. This is hard to impress on many of them when they have from 10 to 25 years of prison life before them. It is very difficult to keep discipline and obtain results with the present congestion of prisoners in the Ohio Penitentiary.

"We have three kinds of unfit prisoners, he stated, "The physically unfit, the mentally unfit and the attitudinally unfit. A prison is no place for a man who cannot learn a trade, for the years they must spend in prison, paying for some crime, should be used to best advantage and when they can't learn there is not much we can do for them."

Warden Thomas said that crime at the present time seems to be more spectacular, more desperate than in previous years. We used to hear of murders and murderers and now these men, and most of them are from the age of 25 to 35, do things differently. It is nothing for such criminals to take their man "for a ride" or get him "on the spot" and do such things with the least bit of hesitancy.

After giving his talk Warden Thomas answered many questions that the members asked concerning prisoners and prison conditions.

GOODYEAR BLIMP PASSES COUNTY

A Goodyear blimp passed over three miles west of the city Friday at 1:30 p. m. flying a course due north.

Due to the thick weather the ship was flying at an altitude of about 200 feet and coming at about 30 miles per hour. The blimp, which was a Goodyear model, was seen by a number of people. It was reported that the blimp was flying over the county on its way to a race track.

OHIO LEGION TO DELVE IN RAID

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 14.—The Ohio Legion, a group of veterans, today announced a raid on the city of Columbus, Ohio, to be held on Nov. 15.

The raid is being held to protest against the city's policy of allowing the sale of alcohol in the city. The Legion is a group of veterans who are active in the city's affairs. They are planning to hold a large demonstration in the city on Nov. 15.

ARMY TO PLAY NAVY GRID 11 TO HELP POOR

New York City On Dec. 12
To Be Scene of Resume of Relations.

SMITH DECIDES

Believe Game Will Become Permanent Affair Again.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 14.—Major General W. R. Smith, superintendent at the U. S. Military Academy, announced today that West Point had agreed to meet Navy in a charity football game in New York City on Dec. 13.

General Smith reached his decision following a conference with his athletic council this morning. Major F. B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics, immediately left the Point in an amphibian plane for Mitchell Field, Long Island. At Mitchell Field he was to transfer to a fast army land plane and fly to Annapolis, where he will meet athletic representatives of the Naval academy and make the necessary arrangements for the game.

The text for General Smith's telegram to the superintendent of the Naval academy follows:

"In view of your difficulties in arranging to play on Dec. 6th as expressed in your telegram of Nov. 13th, the Military Academy will play the Naval Academy a game of football for charity in New York on Dec. 13th under the conditions expressed in my telegram of yesterday. Major F. B. Fleming, graduate manager of the Army Athletic Association, is leaving for Washington at once. If agreeable will meet your athletic representative there to make the necessary arrangements for the game.

Signed,
W. R. Smith,
Major Gen., Superintendent.

In stating that Army would play under the conditions outlined in his telegram of yesterday, General Smith made it plain that the military academy would make no concessions regarding eligibility rules, disagreement over which caused the break between the two institutions. The rival academies have not met on the gridiron since 1925.

General Smith also intimated that the post-season meeting did not mean that gridiron relations would be resumed next year, but there was prospects for annual renewal of the traditional classic had been enhanced materially.

Fish, Game Club Asks Assistance Of All Hunters

The Pickaway Farmers and Sportsmen Association requests hunters to remember during hunting season that hunting is a sport, you pay for and enjoy only through the courtesy of the owners and tenants of our farms.

Care should be observed not to damage fences, gates should be carefully closed, hunting notices observed, and care should be observed near any habitation or near livestock.

Have your hunting license ready and be courteous when game protectors request to see your license. Read your license and observe its regulations.

An extra supply of game protectors has been promised this county by the authorities. Will Francis, the protector in charge of this region, has been especially active in protecting our interests and has secured quite a number of convictions for game and fishing violations. He has also secured for us a considerable quota of game and fish this season.

Yesterday at his request, more than two thousand catfish and bass were distributed in Darby, Little Walnut, and Sippo creeks under the supervision of Ferd Martin, who is in charge of fish and game distribution for this association.

Game protectors are necessary as long as there are game violations. Help this association and the game protectors by observing the law and report violations to this association or to Will Francis at Kingston.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 14.—Former Myers Y. Cooper's expenses statement, showing he spent $3,555.10 during his recent futile quest for re-election was on file today with Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown.

CHAPTER VII
After went back to the jute mill with a new resolution in his heart. As a result, he would spare no effort. He would think only of himself. These men were not his kind. What if he did double-cross them? They were not of his world. Once out of prison he would never be the likes of them again. It was no situation for ethics, and intangible split-hair honor. The law of the lawless!

He would induct himself into their confidence, sit in council with them, learn of their plans as one of them, and then inform on the stool pigeon! Fink! What difference if they were his own kind like them—bah! The code! The code—happened down through generations of wives!

"Kid, I'm leaving you tomorrow." It was Morgan's low, full voice. He stood beside Kent in the jute mill.

"What do you mean?"
"I mean that I got my rat-check. I'm going out tomorrow—out into God's world—out to—to—past that gate."

"You are going out? Why, I thought you had a long bit ahead of you yet?"

Kent was dazed.
"Oh, that was a pushover—my lawyer is clever."

"You're going to leave prison? Not a word could realize the significance of the words."

"Far, far behind—in the big choo-choo—Out there."

"I can't understand how you beat the barrier and—"

His tone was wormwood. He was

"The get you, you skunk, if it's the last act of my life," rasped Morgan, as the guards dragged him off Kent's throat.

grinned with a terrible hatred—a hot hatred for the laws of man, a cold hatred for the wiles of man—a hatred for injustice of man, a hatred for Morgan—a hatred for all mankind.

"Cheer up, kid—maybe I can plug for you—a guy is all different on the outside lookin' to than on the inside lookin' out. Maybe there's someone I can see for you—your sweet heart—"

"You knuckle-don't mention her. Not you can't do a thing for me!"

Kent's tone was a snarl. But Morgan was in jubilant spirits. He could not be offended now. He began to whistle softly.

"I won't sock you on the kisser, kid. I feel too great. Pull yourself together on—prayer."

"There's easy enough for you to say," Kent's voice had changed. He began to blubber now. "You are going out! You can talk like that. You are not just a crook—you're a blabber to talk like that. Pull myself together and—prayer!"

The whistle blew for the recreation period. The prisoners stood back from their work and formed into line to lockstep out for a few minutes' breath of fresh air. Kent, who fell in behind Morgan, clutched at the knife he had in his blouse. The knife he had taken earlier in the day from the scummy Mex after Butch had "ditched" it. Kent had found it some time yet to dispose of the knife, and right now he touched it lovingly, caressingly, as his sudden, sudden gaze rested on the nape of Morgan's neck. But Kent was no killer.

In the recreation yard he isolated himself. Morgan was gleefully telling the others of his good fortune. Kent visited maledictions on him beneath his breath. An unearthly bitterness against the man—this man who was going free—seized his soul. Why should he, a crook, be allowed to go forth a free man and murderer? It was foul, fiendish injustice.

While Kent was in this mood, Oliver, his furtive little mouse's eyes blinking, toddled up. He saw at once that Kent was in low spirits.

"Bad news, kid?" he asked.

"Nothing very pleasant—I just learned that I'll have to do my full time."

"What did I tell you?—get the low down on someone. Tell Wallace. He's for you already."

"Would that actually help me?" Kent was doubtful of everything.

"Get me time off?"

"Sure, plenty of time—and if you grab a big breeze it may kick the gates for you. An' let me in—that'll let us both out. See?"

Kent's mind was whizzing. Kick the gates for him! And he knew there was a "big breeze" in the air. Maybe with Morgan out it would be materialize. Morgan would be better off here... With the gates...

"... Liberty..."

"I can," he gasped, "get the goods on someone. I'm..."

Kent stumbled away. He saw Wal-

WALNUT IS CHAMPION
DEFEATS ASHVILLE 13-7

Walnut outwitted Ashville's gridders at home as well as abroad. The game, Friday afternoon was a great contest and added one more red letter to the Walnut slate which shows no defeat since its first game of the season played at Circleville.

This Walnut team played great football, completely outplaying the visiting team. The first half was a toss-up, but in the second half the Walnut boys came forth full of glory. With a great line, good interference and four non-stop-able backs, Walnut can say it was her game.

Captain Bujan showed remarkable well in interference. When a hole was supposed to be dug he was there to help while also doing his share at ball carrying. Dunkle, at quarter, displayed brilliant field judgment and also showed well at ball carrying. Cook and England are great drivers and open-field runners. The ability of holding like a stone wall and opening a hole wide enough for a wagon to go through has so often been drilled into them, they have done their best throughout the season in obeying orders.

In vain Ashville tried to turn the tables on their old rivals and display a running attack and overpower the underweighted team.

PARENT TEACHERS' MEETING
NATIONAL EDUCATION WEEK

The Walnut Parent Teachers' Association of Walnut-twp will hold its monthly meeting Friday, Nov. 14. "The Dramatic Club" of the High school, under the direction of Mr. Drum, will present the two one act plays, "Burglars" with Hazel Spangler, Ben Nothstine, Jennie Horton and George Huber as the cast and "Getting By" with Marvene Aldenderfer, Gordon Dunkle and Clyde Crumley as the cast. A physical education class under the supervision of Miss Knapp, will take part in the program. The orchestra, playing for the first time directed by Miss Ruffner, will present a short program.

There have been 22 girls reported for basketball. It looks to be a very profitable season.

The 7th and 8th grades gave a very interesting old fashioned program to a well filled house Friday evening. The plays were comic and well portrayed uncovering much hidden talent.

HAVANNA, Nov. 12.—Senor Don Orestes Ferrera, Cuban ambassador to the United States, will shortly be named secretary of finance in the cabinet of President Gerardo Machado, it was reported here today.

U. S. TO PROBE SOVIET GOODS VALUE REPORT

Charges of Dumping Product of Convict Labor To Be Investigated by Feds.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The state department plans to furnish the treasury data on how Soviet Russia produces its goods and the production costs it was learned today.

So far the treasury has lacked this information and has been unable to act on the charges preferred by American manufacturers that Russia produces some of its goods with convict labor and is dumping its products in this country with the intent to undermine the prices of American producers.

As the Soviet is not recognized by the United States cannot send agents into Russia officially and therefore cannot easily establish charges of dumping against Soviet products or prove these commodities are produced by convicts.

The method to be used by the state department was not disclosed. Officials, however, considered it essential for the protection of competing American industries that it may become possible to investigate the Soviet production methods and costs.

The demand of the American Manganese Producers association that an embargo be placed against the Soviet ore is before the treasury, a final brief having been filed by the association within the last few days. Additional details of the charges filed by the producers will be examined but, officials said, on the basis of the information already studied, it has not been possible to establish violation of the law against Soviet manganese.

Senator Oddie (R) of Nevada, and Rep. Fish (R) of New York, plan to introduce bills in the next Congress to embargo the importation of Russian products. Treasury officials thought this the only way to meet the present situation.

Embargos or anti-dumping orders against other Soviet products has been demanded but action only has been taken in the case of matches against which anti-dumping orders were placed. Other products involved were pulp wood, lumber, sausage casings, glue and anthracite coal.

Convict labor goods are barred from the United States when it can be proven that they are so produced. In Russia forced labor is a more important issue. The last Congress enacted a law, effective in 1932, barring goods produced by indentured labor when it comes in competition with articles produced in the United States.

"JUDY" By Winifred Van Duzer

Tris Proposes Marriage To Judy

CHAPTER XXXVIII

JUDY kept asking herself, "Do I love him? So jauntily, so dashing—but just that isn't enough. Just that wouldn't be enough."

She had had such plans, such a vision of a future. Did she care enough about Tris to give it all up for him?

That future which was to have been so glorious seemed rather dim and far away now. She had begun to believe that what Peggy always said might be true—that a career as best was a lonely thing. She had had a taste of romance and the radiance of this had routed the long, young ambitions.

But she was not sure that the place of those ambitions could be filled by what romance offered instead.

Tris—gay, reckless—whose fatalism was like a gleaming bridge across a chasm. Be merry today, for tomorrow never comes.

The other Judy had believed this, but Judy, herself, was more practical.

She tried to talk it over with Tris.

They were making slow time up the river, crawling through a thick, driving mist that beat upon their faces like rain as they stood at the dripping rail. The whole world was gray with fog, and the shorelines were merely darker bands of cloud as the fog horn sounded at intervals in a lost, moaning loneliness.

"Do you mean always to keep moving around, Tris dear? Won't you miss having a home and things some place—all the nice plushy moss a rolling stone doesn't gather?"

"Rolling stones don't want nice plushy moss a rolling stone doesn't roll—keep bright and shiny. I thought you felt this way?"

"Yes, I did. When she was safe at home in Lyell she felt this way. Now she's kept looking ahead. When she was Peggy's age—"

Women wanted to rest sometimes. Tramping de luxe was all right when you were young.

He said, "Think of the freedom, Judy. No responsibility. If you don't like the place you go somewhere else. You're free as—as the gulls."

"Oh, the gulls!" Her eyes turned to the gray shapes wheeling in the gray mist—mounting, swooping, coming to rest only on the waves where there was no rest.

Sea gulls.

She knew now what they had tried to tell her yesterday. Something about freedom. They were free. Like Tris. Wind beaten, storm tossed. Tris was like the gulls, tossed by fortune, blown about by every vague whim.

He wished to be this way. He seemed unrepentantly sad.

"I think the gulls are very lonely, Tris."

"Silly, they have each other."

She was silent. Frightened. Tris had never seemed more enchanting than he did now as he smiled at her in the mist, his dark face full of light, eyes tender.

He put his hand down on hers as it lay on the rail and the old warm sparkle rushed through her veins, lighting the dismal day with beauty.

She gave him a little shaken smile. "Tris, I've got to think."

He bent down and kissed her quickly.

When she glanced backward he was leaning on the rail, watching the gulls that followed the ship.

She met Kit Camp and Betsy. Kit Camp should have been asleep yet here he was frolicking in the rain with Betsy. He never had missed his sleep on her account, Judy reflected.

They saw her coming and Betsy caught his hand and they raced toward her along the deck, very blithe, very carefree.

"Was looking for you, Judy," Betsy squealed. "Got a million things to talk over, but you're darn exclusive. Well, she shrilled at Kit Camp. "I'm on my way. What you going to do about it?"

He looked from Judy to Betsy, laughing all the while, hands in his pockets, moving his broad shoulders with the swaying of the ship. "What do you want me to do, little one?"

Betsy went very close to him, pruned up into his face. "Parting calls for a kiss, at least. Maybe two. Well?"

The glint came into his eyes, but he did not lower his head. "This one doesn't. What do you think of that?"

"What would I think?" A little wrong girl, that's what I think. Go on, see what happens."

Judy met Kit's amused regard and her cheeks flamed. She began to pull Betsy away. "Of all the idiotic feather-heads! I suppose you think you're smart, saying wild, crazy things. Like to bring your neck—I would, indeed!"

"Oh, hush up, Ju!" They were making their way to Betsy's cabin—not too stealthily, for the ship was beginning to pitch a little. Betsy surveyed Judy's flushed, angry face, shrugged with supreme unconcern. "Come down off the pedestal, darling. The man's goofy about you, and you know it! So why act like Queen Victoria's fair-haired child?"

If that's all you've got to say I'll go along."

But Betsy made Judy sit down and when she had collected a nail file from the floor, a buffer from the soap dish and polish from a half eaten box of candy and had perched herself in the middle of the berth she began to talk, as she said, in a plain way.

"You've always had a grudge on life, dearie. Lord knows why. You've got looks and too much sense to act the way you do. Never give any man a break. The way you treated Roy Varman was a crime."

"Roy Varman! Little insect."

"Oh, I don't know. You were sore because they gave him the job you wanted but that wasn't his fault. He's going to land at the top some day, see if he doesn't. He never could give anyone when you were around and you always acted as if he was just under your feet."

Still you wouldn't make a clean cut with him so anyone else could have a chance. Others would come running, Judy Archer. If Roy Varman raised a finger."

In stunned amazement Judy saw that Betsy's eyes were filled with tears. "You, Betsy?" she asked. "Why, I had no idea—oh, I am so sorry—"

"Well, you might do one thing or the other, Ju. You're so darn self-absorbed."

"I guess I have been. Yes—I've been that all right."

"I went out with him once or twice when you wouldn't. And then you dangled him some more. I s'pose you think I'm a scatter brain, Ju. There's a few things I'm solid on though and Roy is" one. I've always been solid for him."

Judy got up and kissed the poor little woo-begone face. "You'll never have to worry about me, I hope you'll be happy together."

"No if in this at all. You want And Ju—" Betsy was very earnest, very hopeful all at once. "I meant what I said. About Sparks. He is wild over you."

"Really dear it doesn't make the slightest difference to me," Judy repeated this. "Not the slightest difference."

And she knew that she lied. The fog seemed to thicken as the day wore along; it was like a gray wall into which the ship nosed cautiously, feeling her way. The cruise had included a trip along the Saguenay, but that was out of the question in such weather.

Ohio Mother's Lucky Find

WHEN we find that some slight adjustment makes a marvelous improvement in a child we wonder why we hadn't thought before to give the child this help.

A good example is the experience of Mrs. C. Kahl, 6612 Walnut Ave., Cleveland. She says: "My little girl was doing fairly well but I noticed she didn't eat like she should and didn't seem to have much energy."

"I wanted to do something for her, and a friend recommended California Fig Syrup, so I gave her some. Iona improved so much I wonder why I didn't do something for her stomach and bowels before. It relieved her sluggishness, gave her a good appetite and plenty of energy."

To point up a child's appetite, increase energy and strength, assist digestion and assimilation, there's nothing more effective than pure vegetable California Fig Syrup. Doctors advise its use to open the bowels during colds and children's diseases; or whenever bad breath, coated tongue, headaches, listlessness, etc., warn of constipation.

The genuine always bears the name California. So look for that when buying. At all drugstores.

WAR VETERANS ARE EMPLOYED THRU U. S. AID

Gainful Occupations Are Obtained Although No Appropriation Is Made.

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Without any appropriation for the purpose, the U. S. Veterans bureau, is succeeding in placing in gainful occupations from 35 to 40 world war veterans every month, it was learned today.

Hundreds of veterans visit the bureau daily for purposes of medical treatment, application for hospitalization, or to press claims for compensation. They are interviewed by Captain Jerome Crowley, contact man, who, if they are found unemployed makes an effort to obtain work for them.

Until a few months ago it was found possible to put from 50 to 60 in positions every month, but the business depression has handicapped the bureau. Crowley declared business men of the national capital had cooperated to a high degree in the employment work.

Outside of Washington regional directors, hospital directors, heads of soldiers homes and other institutions and officials under the direction of General Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans relief, are making every effort to obtain employment for veterans in many centers business men and industrialists are cooperating.

Where the bureau is unable to obtain employment for its charges they are referred to the newly organized labor employment bureau in the labor department which was formed under an act of the last Congress for the benefit of veterans.

In addition the veterans administration is seeking to expedite work on hospital construction and thus furnish labor generally to those out of work. Hines urged that all contractors maintain their wage scales.

Three projects involving an expenditure of about $500,000 will be under construction soon. Bids on a new veterans bureau at Knoxville, Iowa, to cost $250,000 were opened today. Within a few days bids will be received on the Augusta, Ga., hospital to cost $300,000 while during the winter a $280,000 project will get under way at Tucson, Ariz.

At Soldiers homes, now under the jurisdiction of the veterans administration, where men are about to be released restored to health they are given employment at the institution instead of being sent out to further increase general unemployment.

It was expected that Hines and Col. Arthur Woods, head of the president's emergency commission, might discuss the question of veteran unemployment soon. There were approximately 5,000,000 men under arms at the close of the war. Just what percentage of them is unemployed has not been ascertained.

Athletic Club Schedules Buffalo Team

LINCOLNS OPEN COURT SEASON THANKSGIVING

First Basketball Practice In C. A. C. Gym Sunday Afternoon.

ROBINSON COACH

Four Regulars From Last Year To Report For Team.

Although football is still in the spotlight, attention is being turned to basketball which will start in this city on Thanksgiving night following an annual custom and the C. A. C. gymnasium will be the place following another custom.

An effort will be made to book some of the strongest and most popular basketball attractions to furnish opposition for the Athletic club basketballers and the opening game gives promise of the calibre of teams which will face the C. A. C. The Buffalo Lincolns, with some of the best known pro stars in the east have been signed for the opening encounter.

The Lincolns appeared here several years ago and handed the club team a bitter dose of defeat. Some of the flashiest basket shots to ever appear on the eloquent court played in that game and will well be remembered by the C. A. C. tossers.

Immediately after the game here Thursday the Lincolns will embark for Fort Wayne, Ind., where they will meet the General Electrics in the national pro league there. On December 1, they play the Agoga club at Evansville, Ind.

A schedule of preliminary encounters is also being arranged with a team comprising of former high school girls stars making preparations to form a team.

The C. A. C. team this year will be coached by Dick Robinson, who played guard on the club for a number of seasons. He has discarded the uniform and will now devote his time to the bench. Four of the regulars who made up the team last year will report for the first practice Sunday afternoon. They are Art Steele, Eve Merri-man, Boyce Parks and Judy Gordon. Other local athletes who are expected to try out for the team are Joe Barnes, Howard White, Bob Pickens and Dorcy Courtwright. The Sunday practice will begin at 2 p. m.

TIRES PLAY MUTE TEAM

Columbus Outfit Comes Here Prepared To Give Locals Real Grid Fight.

The Red Mutes of Columbus will furnish opposition for the Gordons. The football team Sunday afternoon at Mason's field. The game is scheduled to start at 2:30 p. m. Last week the Gordons showed much strength at times driving through the West Side A. C. for two touchdowns and coming within a few feet of a third when the game ended.

MUSKINGUM GRIDDERS MAKE LAST STAND AGAINST OHIO

Tubby Vlerbome, Former Local High School Star, End and Best Punter On the Lange Team to Play Final Game in College Career—Bikle and Several Others Also Finish.

NEW CONCORD, O., Nov. 14.—Muskingum's last stand of the present grid season will be made Sunday against the forces of Ohio University at the Athens stadium. The game is the season's toughest assignment for the Muskies and is backed as one of the biggest battles on card this week in Ohio.

The contest represents the climax between Ohio's two classes athletic competitors, the Buckeye association and the Ohio Conference. Each team is a leader in its group with perfect records except for a tie game each. Muskingum defeated the West Liberty team which held Ohio to a tie score but Ohio won from Denison by a larger margin than did Muskingum, thus making comparative scores and dope crossed up in pointing a favorite for the fray.

HELD TO TIE
After being held to a 6 to 6 tie by Wooster last week Muskingum's stock took a drop, but the Muskies mentor is hopeful of his team coming back strong in their final encounter. A victory over the strong Athens eleven would be sweet revenge for a 59 to 0 lacing suffered last year and would mark the 1930 season as highly successful.

Saturday will see seven Black and Magenta warriors playing their last college football. They are the men who, two years ago as a green outfit when veterans were few, battled desperately to turn a fifty percent showing. As juniors they were largely responsible for winning conference laurels by taking all games in that circuit. Since the Ohio slaughter in 1927 their cause has not known defeat. That they will make their last stand a real battle can hardly be doubted.

Coach Lange will likely honor these retiring lettermen with starting berths against Ohio. Five are forward wall stalwarts, they being Vlerbome and Leitch, ends; Jacobs, tackle; Armstrong, guard; and Polinsky, center. Besides ably handling the flank position, Vlerbome is punter for the team and is one of the best booters in the state. Jacobs is rated high as a tackle, and is due for mention among the honor men. At the pivot position Polinsky has few peers; having been in every quarter the past three years.

PHIL BIKLE THROUGH
In the backfield, Bikle, quarter, back, and Zink, half, will say goodbye to football. As a sophomore, Bikle came into command of the Muskies machine and has served as its field general three seasons. He is one of Muskingum's best grid men and is the pride of the squad. Zink has developed into a powerful ballcarrier and is second in individual scoring honors on the team.

Three other lettermen will likely appear in the lineup: Forgy, tackle; Hawthorne, guard; and Zeyher, halfback. Hawthorne, although only a junior, is considered as Muskingum's best guard, and Forgy has been ably sharing with Jacobs in the tackling burden. An injured ankle has kept Zeyher out of recent games but it is hoped he will be able to again team with Zink and take up his additional services of kicking and playing safety man.

Heading the sophomore list and filling the apex post regularly is Douglas Russell. He is Muskingum's chief battering ram and also possesses a powerful toe for punting. Other second-year men who may see service Saturday are: McClain and Himes, ends; Dorwart and Sims, guards; and Anderson, halfback. Several other promising recruits have been used at times but will likely be bench material this week.

A large crowd of Muskingum supporters is expected to trek south with the team Saturday to swell the throng which is predicted will fill the Athens stadium to see the greatest team of the Buckeye circuit meet one of the best elevens in the Conference.

PITT TO HAVE STRONGEST 11 IN OHIO GAME

Davis, Heiler, Reider and Clark To Comprise Backfield Saturday.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 14.—As the Panthers wound up their practice for the Ohio State game today it was evident that Coach Jock Sutherland has his full strength available for Saturday, for the first time this year.

The starting lineup likely will be the same as that which faced Tecumseh at the kickoff last Saturday with MacMurdo and Collins at the ends, Quate and Tully at the tackles, Miligan and Lewis at the guards, Daugherty at center, Captain Parker at quarter, Heiler and Reider at the halves, and Clark at full.

The difference this week is that Sutherland can call on his best reserves if needed. Hart Morris, one of the two Ohio lads on the team, is ready to return to his guard post if needed.

The backfield tentatively selected is the lightweight combination for Reider at right half weighs but 155 and Clark at full weighs but 160. Josh Williams, veteran, who was the starter at right half in most of the early season games, weighs 165, and Franklin Hoot, who has scored even touchdowns crashing through opposing lines, weighs 200. Both of these heavier backs are available for Saturday.

Pitt is expecting the hardest kind of a game, at an edge for a good performance.

Ohio will have the big advantage of playing on its home field and this will be partly wiped out by the fact the Panthers will be cheered on by the biggest crowd that ever left the city of Pittsburgh to root for one of its football teams. This crowd will go by train and automobile, three special trains being arranged on the Pennsylvania.

The Panthers will have their own band of 120 pieces, the Panther mascot and the full cheering corps.

The Panthers will work out briefly tomorrow morning and leave at 2 p. m. for Columbus where they will be guests of the Columbus Athletic Club. They will not step on Ohio field until just before game time Saturday.

75 GUESTS AT WOMEN'S CLUB DINNER PARTY

A very pleasant affair was the dinner party of the Business and Professional Women's Club held in St. Philip's Parish Hall Thursday evening.

The hall was beautifully decorated in the representation of a moonlight garden, where large yellow and white chrysanthemums were growing. The three long tables, decorated in blue and gold, with burning tapers lighting their centers, nut cups of yellow chrysanthemums, were in the shape of a horse shoe, in the center of which was a fish pond.

The room lighted with only the colored footlights on the stage, the moon and the burning tapers on the table added much to the beauty of the decorations. The committee responsible for such elaborate decoration was Miss Nelle Anderson, chairman, Misses Elizabeth Drum, Lena Householder, Mary Howard, Hilda Burns, Willetta Burns and Dorothy Robinson. While dinner was being served by the ladies of the Episcopal Church, the club sang songs led by the club quartet, Miss Helen Bartholomew being in charge of the music for the evening.

After a very elaborate dinner a short program was staged in charge of Miss Charlotte McEwing. Mrs. Anna Chandler, president of the Club, gave an address of welcome to the neighboring clubs, Lancaster, Logan, Wilmington and Portsmouth. Seventy-five guests were present.

A solo composed by Clara Southward sung to the tune of Marcheta was rendered by Miss Helen Bartholomew. Miss Bess Pudey of Portsmouth, state chairman of public relations, gave a splendid talk on the benefits the club receive from this department.

After the program the remainder of the evening was spent in bridge with 10 tables at play. Miss Slater of Lancaster and Miss Pettit of Logan was awarded score prizes.

One of the large baskets of yellow chrysanthemums, used in decorating was presented to Mrs. Mary Morris, who is a patient in White Cross Hospital, a former president of the club and now State Federation Treasurer.

MISSIONARY ANNIVERSARY

The 75th anniversary of the founding of the Foreign Missionary movement of the United Brethren Church was observed in Westerville, its birthplace, Tuesday and Wednesday. Many visitors from other states, three sons and other high church officials were present to add to the program and to enjoy the wonderful messages brought from representatives from the five mission fields Bishop A. R. Clippinger, of the Central Area, gave a history of Mission High Lights of the past seventy-five years.

Several missionaries home on furlow gave graphic pictures of their work. Their work Wednesday evening closed with a wonderful missionary pageant, entitled "The Great Commission", which was a historical picture of the achievements of the past 75 years.

Those from the local church, who motored to Westerville and enjoyed the day were Rev. W. F. Ruthford, Mrs. Mary Neuding, Mrs. Abbie Gusman, Mrs. Tillie Seimer, Mrs. Bessie Long, Mrs. Fannie Greeno, Mr. and Mrs. Mont Kirkwood and daughter Lucille, and son Montford and Eleanor Vanderout.

WILLIAMSPORT VETERANS CELEBRATE ARMISTICE DAY

The second annual banquet given by the Williamsport W. C. T. U. in honor of the World War veterans was held at the Parish House in that city Tuesday evening.

Every effort was made by the ladies of the union, of which Mrs. Harry Dunlap is president, to make it an enjoyable affair for the twenty-two men who responded to their invitations. Mrs. C. W. Hays was chairman of the supper committee.

The banquet room was festive in its patriotic colors, flags, flowers and candles. White chrysanthemums tied with red ribbon adorned each crystal chandelier holding a blue candle.

Dr. Harry Jackson, of this city, acted as toastmaster and at his request each one present responded with a story or an incident concerning Armistice Day, two years ago. Short talks were also given by Herschel Alkire, of Chillicothe, Bryce Briggs this city, and Rev. C. Swearingen.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Dorothy Revier, in a scene from the First National-Vitaphone Drama, "Way of All Men," at the Cliftona Friday and Saturday.

The automotive subcommittee recommended also, that auto license tag fees be increased so as to boost the annual yield from this source approximately $10,000,000 to make up for elimination of the general property tax on autos. It was estimated that such an increase would raise the license fee to an average of about $10.

The main committee has not yet acted upon the recommendations of the subcommittees on real estate assessment and automobiles. It rejected, for the second time, however, a general principle of tax reduction proposed by C. E. Lampson of Jefferson, member of the subcommittee on agriculture.

Lampson recommended that construction and maintenance of improved highways be provided for solely through taxes or license fees, levied upon the traffic, that auto license tag fees be increased so as to relieve automobiles of the general property tax, and that the four-cent gasoline tax be re-allocated among the municipalities, counties, state, and townships "fairly" and in such a way as to replace all tax levies for road and bridge purposes, and that a "pay-as-you-go" basis be adopted for county and township road construction.

Indications are, however, that the committee will eventually adopt some of Lampson's proposals. They were tabled Thursday after some of the members complained that they are "too general."

Miss Elizabeth Stevenson will attend the funeral Friday of George Orr in Zanesville.
